A division of the West Virginia Development Office, the WV SBDC is funded in part through a Cooperative Agreement with the U.S. Small Business Administration.
Since 1983, the WV SBDC has been the premier resource for small business creation and expansion in the Mountain State. As a key economic driver, the WV SBDC offers a variety of services to entrepreneurs and small businesses to increase their profitability and customer base, enabling continued growth and prosperity for West Virginia’s diversifying economy.

“My business coach assisted me with startup development in 2010. Today, I still rely on the WV SBDC to develop strategies for growth and expansion and market research to keep my small business in great operational health.”

Kim Baker — River and Rails Bakery, Huntington

“The WV SBDC has been there for me with experienced advice on everything from assessing new business opportunities to marketing. My continued growth and expansion wouldn’t be possible without their support and resources.”

Chef Matt Welsch — Vagabond Kitchen, Wheeling

“We have used the WV SBDC business coaching services for several years now. From business strategy and market development to federal contracting assistance, our SBDC coaches have been a vital part of our company’s success.”

Mike McKochnie — Mountain View Solar, Berkeley Springs

Small businesses owned by SBDC clients generate $2.12 in tax revenues for every $1 spent on the program

Every $1 spent on SBDC operations leverages $9.53 in new capital

2,502 jobs created since 2013

$117,456,076 capital leveraged since 2013
